Born in Kingston, Ontario, Rob Carnegie is a singer/songwriter who spent several years in Nashville building his career and working with some of the best in the music industry.

Sharing the stage with some of Canada's top country names including George Canyon, Gord Bamford, Dean Brody, Doc Walker and Johnny Reid, Carnegie has built a strong following of fans that have helped him define his place in country music today. Rob recently released his fifth single to country radio and this year looks to be strong for one of Canada's upcoming new country artists. Adding to his list of credits, Carnegie played at the 2013 Boots and Hearts Music Festival in Bowmanville, ON, shared the stage with Kix Brooks (Brooks and Dunn) in the summer of 2013, and debuted his new single, My Time, at the legendary, world-renowned Bluebird Café in Nashville, TN.
